

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

ViVA TRIO RELEASES ORCHESTRAL INTERPRETATIONS ON LOVED CLASSICS

OUT OCTOBER 20th, 'NOTHING ELSE MATTERS' BRINGS A NEW TWIST TO METALLICA, DURAN DURAN, LEONARD COHEN & MORE

Private Stream — Password: press | MP3 Zip | WAV Zip | iTunes | Spotify
Album cover | Album Artwork | Liner Notes
YouTube video | YouTube teaser - Ordinary World
Bio | Photos — Password: press
Website | Twitter | Facebook | Instagram

There is something deeply compelling hearing familiar classics like Leonard Cohen’s “Hallelujah” or Chris Isaak’s “Wicked Game” reconfigured as ornately detailed orchestral pieces hinged on an electrifying three-part harmony.

“It’s a show,” has been said to be the best way to describe ViVA Trio and their upcoming release ‘Nothing Else Matters’ — available October 20th, 2017.

That phrase, so deceptively simple, does indeed manage to give justice to the head-spinning, heart-stopping magic of soprano Anna Bateman, mezzo-soprano Erin Fisher, and soprano and songwriter Katya Tchoubar. Crafted with a myriad of marquee composers, arrangers, orchestrators, musicians, and even a children’s choir — a small army by any measure.

“I have dreamt of creating something like this my whole professional singing career, says Tchoubar. “I view this album as my life’s legacy. We love every moment of every track.”

“We have to connect with them emotionally,” Bateman adds regarding ViVA’s criteria for song selection. “Songs have to really lend themselves to the expanded range of classical voice. We also look for songs that have a sweeping, grand feel we think will sound great with orchestra.”

“The journey of this album was quite dynamic and every track has a story,” Tchoubar says, reflecting on the Trio’s successful crowd-funding bid to bring ‘Nothing Else Matters’ to release. “Now that it has come to fruition, it already feels like a success. I’m excited to travel the world and perform it live. To perform something of our own creation is a celebration.”

For more information, please contact:

--

Eric Alper
Publicist
647-971-3742

For booking and press inquiries, please contact ViVA directly, info below.

Contact ViVA Trio

Phone: 416.727.2143

Email: info@vivatrio.com

Website: www.ViVATrio.com

Facebook: ViVA Trio

Twitter: @ViVAtrio

Youtube: ViVA Trio

Instagram: vivatrio

###